Our Past, Our Future

In November, we are celebrating Native American Heritage Month with programs that give recognition to the significant contributions of America’s First Peoples, many of them calling Massachusetts their home.

Native America (page 14) challenges everything we thought we knew about the Americas before and since contact with Europe. It travels through 15,000 years to showcase massive cities, unique systems of science, art and writing, and 100 million people connected by social networks and spiritual beliefs spanning two continents.

Made with the active participation of Native American communities, this four-part series features sacred rituals filmed for the first time, history-changing scientific discoveries, and rarely heard voices from the living legacy of Native American culture. A robust community outreach and education campaign will accompany the series, with classroom resources available on PBS LearningMedia.

In Keepers of the Light (page 16), we are proud to celebrate the history and traditions of the Wampanoag people who have made the western tip of Martha’s Vineyard their home for thousands of years.

This film tells the story of the dramatic relocation of the Gay Head Lighthouse from its perch at the end of the Aquinnah cliffs where it was in danger of sliding into the ocean. An iconic symbol of New England maritime history, the lighthouse is a source of pride for Wampanoags because a member of the tribe was the first Native American lighthouse keeper in the US, an honor that has been passed on through generations. The film documents how the community mobilized $3 million to relocate the 400-ton, 18th-century beacon, honoring the Wampanoags’ deep connection to the sea.

Nova’s Operation Lighthouse Rescue (page 16) explores the complex engineering that the relocation entailed, moving the lighthouse along on tracks inch by inch until it was 134 feet inland to safety. As they race to save this national treasure, discover the geology they encounter, the archeology they uncover, and technology they employ to rescue this historic building.

These films explore and present a broad vision of our shared American history, reflecting public media’s purposeful approach to creating understanding as we bring our past to life.

As we gather at the end of this month to give thanks, we thank you for your generous support making these enriching programs possible.

Wampanoag Legacy Built more than 200 years ago at the western tip of Martha’s Vineyard, the Gay Head Lighthouse is one of America’s most famous beacons. Keepers of the Light tells the story of those in each generation of a small Wampanoag community who are called upon to serve as lighthouse keepers, and the recent effort to save the lighthouse from falling over the edge of the rapidly eroding cliffs. Immediately after, stay tuned for Nova’s Operation Lighthouse Rescue to see how engineers race against time to save this historic landmark from certain doom.

Unsung Heroes

In February 1935, Robert Watson-Watt demonstrated for the first time that airplanes could be detected by bouncing radio waves off them. By 1939, radar stations dotted the British coast, tracking aircraft 100 miles away. It was this invention—more than any other—that saved the Royal Air Force in the 1940 Battle of Britain. Eddie Izzard stars in this funny and factual drama about a little-known team of scientists and their pioneering work in the run up to World War II.

Heroes in Transition

Just in time for Veterans Day, this documentary looks at the tough times that American veterans face when they leave the military and try to rejoin civilian life. From troubles with the law and homelessness to survivors’ guilt, how do they navigate their new world so they can be the contributing members of society that they were when they served? A team of photographers, writers and filmmakers crisscross the country to share the personal stories of veterans when they come home.

Sacred Traditions

Across the country, Native American people are regaining their vitality through the recovery and rejuvenation of traditional knowledge of land, language, arts and health. This series focuses on how tribes from different geographic regions in the United States—including Oklahoma, the Northwest, Alaska and the Great Lakes—are returning to their roots to address critical issues of wellness, the environment and human rights.

Native American Politics

Moroni Benally is running to be president of the Navajo Nation, considered to be the most powerful position among Native Americans. Young, gay, Mormon and highly educated, he sets out to confront the establishment and ends up challenging his own preconceived notions. This film shows that having new ideas and a unique platform does not necessarily prepare newcomers to the political world for the daily rigors of the campaign trail and the unpredictability of voters.

The Scrum Brings Politics to the Dinner Table

WGBH’s politics podcast The Scrum takes a unique look at local politics in Massachusetts, especially during this pivotal election season, to make the issues a bit more relatable to listeners. Co-hosted by WGBH News reporter Adam Reilly (top) and WGBH Senior Editor Peter Kadzis, The Scrum examines the factors that influenced who and what will appear on voters’ ballots on Nov. 6.

“In some ways, you could say what we’re doing with The Scrum is treating behind-the-scenes political discourse like the after-dessert discussion at the family Thanksgiving dinner,” said Kadzis.

“I sometimes like to play the crazy uncle who says what’s on everyone’s mind, what everyone’s thinking but won’t say,” he said. “What we’re trying to do is give people—whether they’re political professionals or amateurs who just have an intense interest in public affairs—a sense of what it’s like on the inside.”

Recent episodes of the popular podcast—available on wgbh.org/podcast/the-scrum and iTunes—have included a deep dive into the much-buzzed-about Democratic primary race between US Rep. Michael Capuano and Boston City Councilor Ayanna Pressley for the Seventh District in the US House of Representatives. The podcast also took a critical look into Boston’s overheated real estate market and featured interviews with the Democratic gubernatorial candidates for Massachusetts.

“We’re very pleased to be able to recognize the distinctive work of these individuals and, through these fellowships, support them in further developing and advancing in their careers,” said WGBH President Jon Abbott.

WCRB Thanks Listeners with Thanksgiving Treats

By Anthony Rudel, 99.5 WCRB Station Manager

It might seem odd to begin at the end of the month, but I wanted to start by letting you know about the incredible music we’ve got planned for the Thanksgiving weekend. Let’s begin by highlighting the episode of WCRB In Concert the team has prepared for Sunday, Nov. 25 at 7pm.

Earlier this fall we recorded a concert at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum that featured the fantastic musicians of A Far Cry. This chamber orchestra was selected as Improper Bostonian’s Best Classical Ensemble for 2018, describing the group this way: “In its first decade, this conductor-free ensemble has earned and sustained a reputation for top-drawer playing, engaging programming and outstanding guest artists.” Don’t miss this chance to hear the ensemble in a superb program of music by Bernstein, Mussorgsky, Respighi and others the Sunday after Thanksgiving on WCRB.

Continuing backward, Saturday, Nov. 24 at 8pm, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be led by Music Director Andris Nelsons in a live broadcast of Beethoven’s Fourth and Fifth Symphonies.

A complete schedule for the BSO and for WCRB In Concert is below, but if you’re wondering about the rest of the Thanksgiving weekend, our team is putting together a classical music feast that will be the perfect accompaniment for whatever you have planned.

Finally, from everyone at WCRB to you and yours, have a Happy—and musical—Thanksgiving!

New Voices Continue Popular Series

By Mindy Todd, WCAI Host and Managing Director for Editorial

Guest commentators are taking the lead in WCAI's popular A Cape Cod Notebook audio essay series.

Robert Finch, a nature writer living in Wellfleet, started A Cape Cod Notebook in 2005 to describe the intersection of human nature and natural history. Winner of the 2006 New England Edward R. Murrow Award for Best Radio Writing, Finch will provide only occasional essays in the next few months while he takes a year off to work on a project as a 2018 Guggenheim Fellow.

In Finch’s absence, guest commentators—Mary Bergman, Dennis Minsky (right) and Nelson Sigelman have provided their own audio essays to help the series live on. A writer and historian, Bergman is writing a novel and working on historic preservation. Her essays describe life on Nantucket, where she lives now, and Provincetown, where she grew up.

“I’ve lived most of my life here, in these strange and beautiful sandy places,” Bergman said. “I feel lucky to be able to take WCAI listeners along with me as I explore some of what makes the Cape and Islands so unique.”

A Provincetown resident since 1968, Minsky started his career as a field biologist at Cape Cod National Seashore, protecting nesting terns and plovers. He is involved in many local conservation projects and works as a naturalist on the Dolphin Fleet Whale Watch.

“I have considered Robert Finch a friend and a mentor for almost 50 years,” said Minsky, who is also a nature writer. “It is a great honor to be included in the group of writers who are temporarily filling in for him during his sabbatical.”

Minsky’s audio essays include pieces on Cape birds and marine life. “The feedback I have received from listeners about my pieces is gratifying and underscores the true nature of the community that WCAI truly represents,” he said.

Nelson Sigelman is a former award-winning reporter and columnist for The Martha’s Vineyard Times. An occasional shore-fishing guide, he also works as a part-time shellfish constable for the town of Tisbury. Sigelman’s most recent book is Martha’s Vineyard Outdoors: Fishing, Hunting and Avoiding Divorce on a Small Island. His favorite topics for audio storytelling include hunting and fishing.

A Cape Cod Notebook can be heard every Tuesday at 8:45am and 5:45pm.
